To whom it may concern,

I am writing to express my keen interest in the current job opening. As an experienced JavaScript developer, I have dedicated several years to study at IT-Högskolan, where I have gained valuable proficiency in a wide range of skills and technologies. Throughout my academic journey, I have honed my expertise in HTML and CSS, Native JavaScript, UX/UI design, JavaScript with framework and open-source library such as Vue and React, Agile software development, backend programming, database management, cross-platform development, software life cycle management, and testing with TypeScript.

I am currently doing my second internship with Stryda and, at the same time, I am working on my future Google UX Design Professional Certificate.

The reason I am particularly drawn to your company is my firm belief that I can bring a fresh perspective and contribute innovative ideas to help surpass the primary objectives.

I possess good communication skills and can liaise effectively both with colleagues and, of course, clients. I am really enthusiastic about programming and exploring new things, and I am also a very social person, who like being with people from different cultures.

I am looking forward to discussing the job position and my qualifications with you in more detail soon. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Kseniia Lukanina
